

Plantagenet

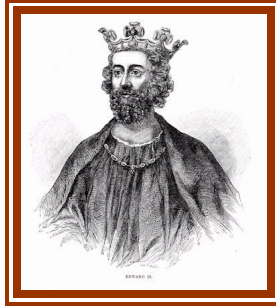

Edward I (1239-1307)
m.1- Eleanor of Provence

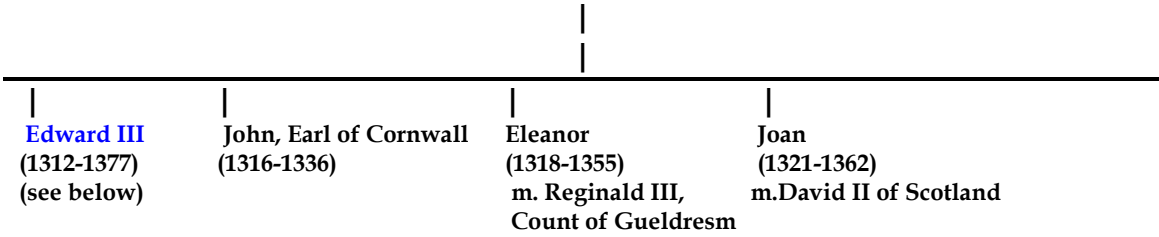

m.2- Margaret of France

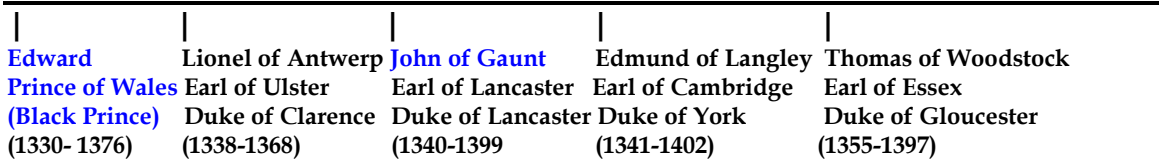

Edward II (1284-1327)
m. Isabella of France

Edward III (1312-1377)
m. Philippa of Hainault and Holland

f

(Plus 5 females and 3 males deceased)

(Historical characters pertinent to our story or appearing in the series are in blue. Fictional characters are in red.)

Edward III bestowing the title of Prince of Wales upon his son, Edward

It is worth noting that two of John of Gaunt's sons married Joan of Kent, the granddaughter of Joan, The Fair Maid of Kent; and Edmund, Duke of York, married her sister, Margaret.

Upon the death of Edward III, his grandson, Richard, took the throne; however, he was an ineffectual ruler and, with so many able uncles more than happy to relieve him of his duties. Disputes soon broke out, Richard eventually losing his throne to Henry Boilingbroke, son of John of Gaunt and this succession led to the period known as The War of the Roses.